The Base Ball Franchise Secured by Wheeling Railway Company.

WASJUST IN THE NICK OF TIME.

The Deal Effected a Few Minutes Before the Train Left for Columbus, and the Players Were Hustled to the Ohio City for Yesterday's Game-The Company May Hold On Only Temporarily.

The local base ball muddle was settled yesterday when the Wheeling Railway Company became the owner of the franchise and team. This transaction took place just a few minutes befor the train for Columbus left at 10:15 a. m. and the players had to hustle to make connections for Ohlo's capital. As will be seen elsewhere rain stopped the game in Columbus, and it would geem, fortunately, for at the end of the second inning the score was 5 to 1 in favor of the other side.

While the Wheeling Railway Company came to the rescue it is not certain that it will continue to act in the capacity of proprietor, and there is talk of a transfer to local partles providing the latter have the money, but in the meantime the street car people will furnish the sinews of war. The deal for the franchise was made with President Power shortly after 10 o'clock, and then the president annihilated time and distance in order to reach the players. They were at the Park hotel and in a jiffy they picked up their baggage and burried to the Baltimore & Ohio depot, but those that were not notified with the bunch got the station just as the Then Secretary W. A. Shirley, of the street car company, pressed into service a car with which the players were taken to Benwood, and a telephone mes-sage held the train at Benwood Junction, where the belated players were taken on board. The train was held for their accommodation fully a quarter of an hour. Finally all got away, and Shirley accompanied the Secretary party to Zanesville.

President Power left last evening for his home in Pittsburgh, after having spent a busy time of it in trying to adjust the perplexing state of affairs. Yesterday morning it looked as though the franchise was to go by default as far as being taken by Wheeling people, and everything was about declared off, when the street car people came to the rescue. It is said they wil! not attempt to play Sunday ball, and will employ Captain Turner as manager, for the

Thus, in a day the franchise of the Wheeling ball club passed out of the control of Messrs. Peter R. Haley and E. B. Lytle, who secured it from W. B. Howell about the middle of last season. Lytle said yesterday that the railway company would give him and Haley until Saturday to raise the money needed to meet their financial obligations, about $1,000, but he did not take a roseate view of the prospects for se-curing the franchise's return. Lytle took exception to a statement in an evening paper that the team would play better ball under the new management, and he claimed the credit for the good aggregation that is representing Wheeling, since he had picked up the talent through knowledge of their abilities.

After the Columbus series Wheeling is scheduled to play at home all week, beginning with next Sunday, but as Sunday games won't be played here, the first three games, including Sunday's, may be transferred to Fort Wayne.

THE RAILBOADS

Railroad men are watching for the opening of the fight by which the differential lines hope to compel the stand-ard roads to resort to arbitration over excess fares, with interest. On all sides it is believed that when the matter is settled this time it will be decided once and for all.

If an arbitration board is called to gether it will have one less subject to contend with, as commissions have been almost effectually effaced from the consideration of prominent rail-roads. There are still the two bothersome questions of excess fares and differentials to be contended with, and it is confidently believed that these will also be wiped out by some agreement, similar to that on commissions, being entered into, says the Cleveland Leader.

The trend of general opinion among railroad officials seems to be that both excess fares and differentials have seen excess tares and differentials have seen their day and that some other arransg-ment will have to be entered into to even up conditions, if indeed it is de-sired to make any concessions to the weaker lines. There are many who be-lieve that the so-called weaker lines, which now have the differential privilege, have no right to any conce lieve that the so-called weaker lines, which now have the differential privilege, have no right to any concessions, as they are proving themselves to be in such a condition that they could fight for their own business with a reasonable hope of winning.

It is conceded that unless something is done to conciliate the so-called weaker lines for the loss of their differentials and the advantage gained by the stronger roads charging excess fares, it would leave all in a worse shape than ever, as it would lead to a series of most disastrous rate and speed wars. The two remedies which the stronger lines propose are to buy up the smaller lines and control them in that way, thus being able to prevent rate wars, or to eater into an agreement that no train shall be run faster between New York and Chicago than the weakest line can make. An arrangement of this sort has been in existence for a long time between Chicago and St. Louis, and the agitation over the question of excess fares and differentials may end in such an arrangement being made between Chicago and New York. The standard roads believe that while they are making these concessions on fares to the weaker lines they are practically giving them so much business. They say they might as well enter into a pool out and out ast to be doing that which will have the same effect as a pool.
